

Robin Dunbar lectures and presentations 2010

- 18 February 2010 'How many friends does one person need?', Lunchtime Lecture: Royal Society of Arts, London
- 4 March 2010 'How many friends does one person need?', Bath Literary Festival
- 6 March 2010 'Why humans behave as they do', Words by the Water Literary Festival, Keswick
- 7 May 2010 'How many friends does one person need?', Swindon Literary Festival
- 25 March 2010 'The anthropology of social communities and health', "Think Digital" conference, Digitas Health, London
- 15 April 2010 'Friends and other evolutionary quirks', Hay-on-Wye U3A
- 17-19 May 2010 'Is religion adaptive? Integrating cognition and function', "Science and Religious Conflict Conference", James Martin School, Oxford University
- 20 May 2010 'How many friends does one person need?' SciBar Café, Oxford
- 24 May 2010 'Evolutionary psychology in the round', 20th anniversary lecture, Centre for Philosophy of Sciences, London School of Economics
- 7 Jun 2010 'The role of the social brain in the evolution of human uniqueness', Nobel symposium for 200th Anniversary of Karolinska Institute, Stockholm
- 12 June 2010 'Your decadent human brain', Cheltenham Science Festival (with the British Neuroscience Association)
- 14 June 2010 'Why we need science like we never needed it before', "Scientists @ Speakers' Corner" [Hyde Park, London] (organised by London Zoo)
- 17 Jun 2010 'The social brain hypothesis and the nature of relationships', Keynote lecture: Social Sciences Research Day, Radboud University, Nijmegen, Holland,
- 23 June 2010 'Is there an optimal human group size?', "Operational Adaptation" (US Office of Naval Research), Edinburgh
- 18 July 2010 'Why humans behave as they do', Ways With Words Literary Festival, Dartington (with the Telegraph)
- 21-23 July 2010 'How many friends do you really think you have?', Plenary lecture: 25th anniversary PsyPAG Conference, Sheffield
- 20 August 2010 'Taking social networking sites at face value', Edinburgh Book Festival
- 26-27 August 2010 'Evolution and human mate choice', Royal Society (London) workshop on "Sexual Selection", Kavli Royal Society International Centre
- 8 September 2010 Ten-minute Lectures, University Museum, Oxford University

9 September 2010 'How many friends does one person need?', Keynote lecture: Aalto University and Nokia Research "Social Networks from Science to Technology" conference, Helsinki, Finland

14-19 September 2010, BAAS British Festival of Science, Birmingham

18 November 2010, "Skeptics in the Pub", Edinburgh

16 November 2010 'Gender behaviour: what can science tell us?', Guardian/Cambridge University Press debate on gender differences, London

8 December 2010 'The social brain in the workplace', Keynote lecture: "Work Place Trends: New Horizons" CBI conference, London

9 December 2010 'Don't eat animals debate', *Intelligence*² public debate "Must we eat meat?", London

15 December 2010 'The social brain', Keynote lecture: British Neuroscience Association, The Christmas Symposium, London

15 December 2010 'Family, friends and the brain', LERN/CEE Medawar Memorial Lecture, University College London